About:

It can be hard to get into running as a hobby or sport, as it is hard to figure out what gear you need and what kind of runs and exercises are the best suited for your fitness level. Runner's Lobby is a website targeted at runners of any skill level in order to help. The goal of this website is to give a platform for runners to share and discuss their gear, preferred exercise routines, running routes, and other helpful tips for runners of any experience level.

Core Features

- Main page: This page shows a list of sub-forums, such as gear, running experience or route recommendation. Pinned threads for newer users, and allow users to search for threads based on the thread titles.
- Popular Threads page: This page shows the popular threads based on the number of likes.
- Gear Threads page: Users can add gear or review certain gear.
- Running Experience Threads page: Users can create a thread and edit a thread they created.
